Made where the work happens.

Development, sampling, production and packing stay connected in one working system. These are photographs of our Dongguan site, selected to show the parts of the operation that matter to a sourcing team.

SAMPLING AND DEVELOPMENT

A sample room holds forms, materials and reference constructions used to agree the standard before cutting.

CUTTING AND SEWING

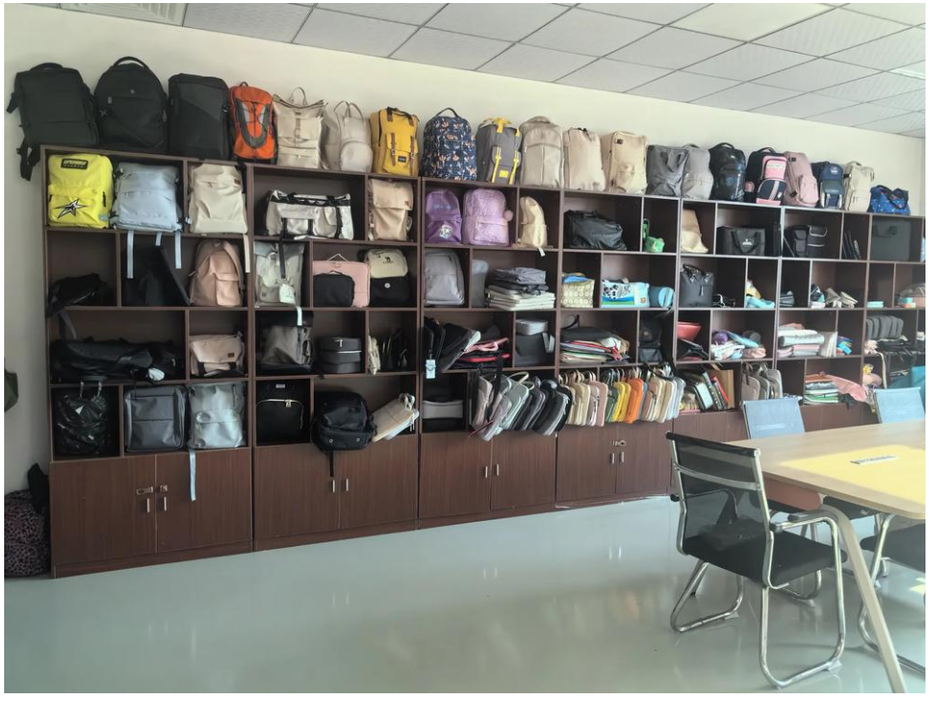

Material cutting and sewing are organized as a clear production flow, so an approved sample can be repeated at order quantity.

INSPECTION AND PACKING

Finished bags are checked against the confirmed specification. Orders are counted, packed and prepared for the agreed shipment plan.

Bulk lead time is typically 15–20 days and is agreed per order, after sample approval and material confirmation.

Customization

Use any reference model as a starting point. Final materials, color, identity and packing are confirmed through sampling.

01 Reference

Start from a published model in this catalog or from your own reference.

02 Sample

Materials, dimensions, color, branding and packaging are confirmed on a sample.

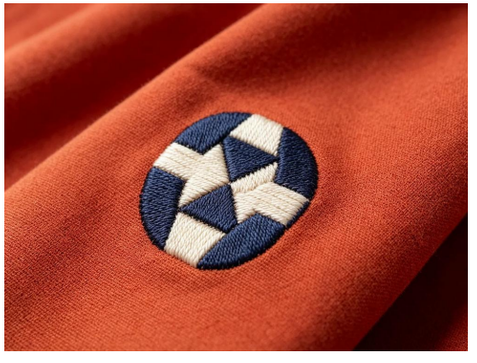

03 Production

Bulk lead time is typically 15–20 days after sample approval and material confirmation.

SCREEN PRINT

Strong, efficient color for scalable orders.

EMBROIDERY

Dimensional branding with durable threadwork.

WOVEN LABEL

Detailed identity integrated into the construction.

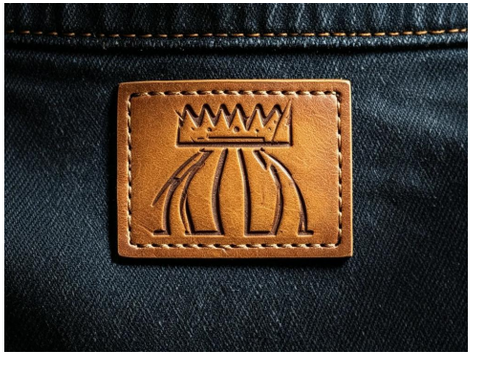

HEAT TRANSFER

Fine detail and clean edges on suitable shells.

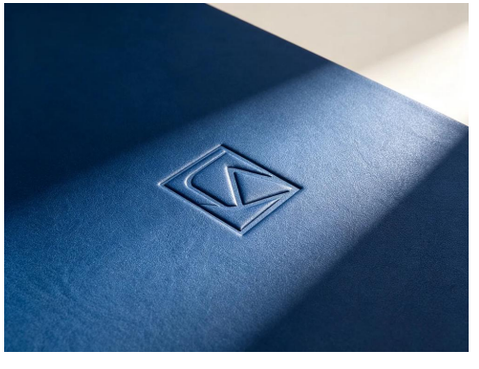

RUBBER PATCH

A tactile mark with a finished, molded edge.

LEATHER PATCH

Stitched identity with a natural surface.

EMBOSSING

A pressed mark in leather or coated materials.

METAL BADGE

Hardware-level identity on the finished bag.
